

Content

Press release	2
Biography	4
Wall Texts	5
Visitor Information	13
Paris Musées	15

Dana Schutz,

Le monde visible

6 October 2023 - 11 February 2024

Press preview, Thursday 5 October, 9.30am to 12pm

The exhibition Dana Schutz. Le monde visible (Dana Schutz. The Visible World) will be held from 6 october 2023 to 11 february 2024 at the Musée d'Art Moderne de Paris. It is the first time that the work of this internationally renowned American artist has been shown in France on this scale.

Dana Schutz. The Visible World includes forty paintings from the early 2000s until today, alongside twenty drawings and etchings and seven sculptures.

Dana Schutz is a storyteller. Her work builds a world of unruly characters, human folly, deadpan predicaments and physical calamity. She often paints a dystopic portrait of today's world, untethered to traditional notions of beauty. A virtuoso in her use of colour, over the years she has honed a sense of dramatic tension which is revealed in her intricate compositions. Her paintings depict imaginary scenes inspired by hypothetical situations, physical improbabilities, contemporary life and language.

This exhibition outlines various themes that can be found throughout her work: intangible subjects, often portrayed with humour; artists at work; the transformation and construction of the self; and tensions between the individual and the collective.

In recent years, Schutz has added sculpture to her artistic practice, extending her gestures and forms in clay. Coming full circle, the subject of sculpture can be found in her earliest paintings. Recently her paintings have become more volumetric and allegorical, increasingly populated with clusters of colourful characters who may be floating through the night, perched upon an island of jawbones, or fighting to stand on top of a mountain.

PRESSE RELEASE

Director

Fabrice Hergott

Curator

Anaël Pigeat assisted by Alexandra Jouanneau

Follow MAM

mam.paris.fr

Dana Schutz

Mountain Group

2018

Oil on canvas

304,8 x 396,2 cm

Collection Marguerite Steed Hoffman
Photo Jason Mandella

© 2023 Dana Schutz. Courtesy of the artist, CFA Berlin, Thomas Dane Gallery
and David Zwirner

Visitor information

Musée d'Art Moderne de Paris 11 Avenue du Président Wilson 75116 Paris Tel. 01 53 67 40 00 www.mam.paris.fr

Open Tuesday to Sunday, 10am to 6pm

Open late Thursdays, until 9:30pm

Admission

Full rate: 12 € Concessions: 10 €

Cultural activities, information and reservations

Tel. 01 53 67 40 80

Press officer

Maud Ohana maud.ohana@paris.fr Tel. 01 53 67 40 51

These visions of a post-apocalyptic world are influenced by her take on art history, from Bruegel to Alice Neel. They evoke the obsolescence of an ailing world, the vanity of contemporary mythologies and the breakdown of communication. Taken from a painting of the same name, the exhibition title The Visible World acts a proposal and a contradiction — illuminating the formless and the imaginary.

The exhibition Dana Schutz. Le monde visible, is organised by the Musée d'Art Moderne de Paris in close collaboration with the Louisiana Museum of Modern Art of Humlebæk (Denmark).

Dana Schutz was born in 1976 in Livonia (Michigan). She lives and works in Brooklyn, New York.

Biography

Dana Schutz was born in Livonia, in the suburbs of Detroit, Michigan, in 1976. She studied at the Cleveland Institute of Art (Bachelor of Fine Arts), then at Columbia University (Master of Fine Arts), in New York, where she lives and works today.

From 2002 onward, her work has been the subject of many solo shows, notably at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Cleveland (2006), the Museo di arte moderna e contemporanea di Trento e Rovereto (Italy, 2010), and the Atlanta Contemporary Art Center, in Atlanta (2011). Her travelling exhibition If The Face Had Wheels opened at the Neuberger Museum of Art in Purchase, New York, in the autumn of 2011. This was followed by an exhibition at the Hepworth Wakefield Museum (United Kingdom), in 2013. A retrospective on her career was held at the musée d'Art contemporain de Montréal (Canada, 2015), followed by an exhibition of recent works at the Institute of Contemporary Art, Boston (2017), and at the Transformer Station, Cleveland (2018).

Schutz also took part in many group exhibitions, notably Clandestine, Venice Biennial (2003); Greater New York, P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center, New York (2005); Art in America: Three Hundred Years of Innovation, Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York (2007); Riotous Baroque, Kunsthaus Zürich (Switzerland, 2012); and America Is Hard To See, Whitney Museum of American Art, New York (2015).

In 2017, Schutz presented three paintings at the Whitney Biennial, in New York: Open Casket (2016), Fight in an Elevator (2015) and Shame (2017). On this occasion, Open Casket drew controversy.

Her work has been shown in several recent group exhibitions, for instance Dirty Protest, Hammer Museum, Los Angeles (2019). In 2020, she took part in the major exhibition Radical Figures. Painting in the New Millennium, at the Whitechapel Gallery, London. In 2021, her work was also part of the show Portals, held by the Hellenic Parliament and the artistic foundation Neon at the former Public Tobacco Factory, in Athens (Greece). In 2022, she participated in Sheila Hicks: Off Grid, at The Hepworth Wakefield Museum (United Kingdom), as well as in Espressioni con Frazioni, at the Castello di Rivoli (Italy).

Dana Schutz's artworks appear in many public collections around the world, notably: Hammer Museum, Los Angeles; Institute of Contemporary Art, Boston; Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; Museo di arte moderna e contemporanea di Trento e Rovereto (Italy); Museum of Fine Arts, Boston; San Francisco Museum of Modern Art; Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York; Whitney Museum of American Art, New York.

Wall texts

Face Eater, 2004

The motif is grotesque, a pure product of the imagination, impossible to behold in the real world. We often hear about people 'eating their own words' or 'choking on their words', or about screams 'getting stuck in the throat'. Here, the outside of the face is being engulfed by the mouth before coming out again digested and transformed in a constant push-and-pull between inside and outside — with Schutz seemingly trying to breach the boundaries of both spaces. Language precedes the artwork. The mission of the painting is then to outmanoeuvre language, to leave it behind and to reveal itself on its own terms. Hints of Cubism can be seen in this artwork. As is the case with the painting Swimming, Smoking, Crying (2009), the face eater is also a distant cousin of Edvard Munch's (1863–1944) Scream.

Dana Schutz Face Eater 2004 Oil on canvas 58.4 x 45.7 cm Private Collection, New York Photo Jason Mandella © 2023 Dana Schutz. Courtesy of the artist, CFA Berlin, Thomas Dane Gallery and David Zwirner

Swimming, Smoking, Crying, 2009

It is impossible to swim, smoke and cry at the same time, and yet this is exactly what this young woman is doing, crushed by the pressure time is putting her under. Fate as well as the physical elements are choking the life out of her. She appears as an amphibious creature with eyes like a hammerhead shark. Her tears and the salt water of the sea have begun to dissolve the boundaries between her body and her surroundings. The ambiguity of the scene, as well as the mirror and transparency effects of the water, are archetypal of Schutz's work. Looking at this face balanced between sea and sky also brings to mind Edvard Munch's (1863–1944) famous painting, The Scream.

Dana Schutz
Swimming, Smoking, Crying
2009
Oil on canvas

Collection Nerman Museum of Contemporary Art, Johnson County Community College, Overland Park, Kansas Gift of Marti and Tony Oppenheimer and the Oppenheimer Brothers Foundation

© 2023 Dana Schutz. Courtesy of the artist, CFA Berlin, Thomas Dane Gallery and David Zwirner

Sneeze, 2001

The depiction of a sneeze may appear as repulsive and grotesque. Art history isn't exactly peppered with those, nor with scenes of yawning or fits of laughter. But why is that? Maybe this is due to the fleeting nature of these actions. In order to depict a sneeze, all the artist has to go on is her own intuition and her most private sensations – which are also the most widely shared. Two centuries before her, the sculptor Franz Xaver Messerschmidt came up with his stunningly lifelike Character Heads. Dana Schutz creates a mental picture, based on a physiological phenomenon.

Dana Schutz
Sneeze
2001
Oil on canvas
48,3 x 48,3 cm
Private Collection, New York
Photo Jason Mandella
© 2023 Dana Schutz. Courtesy of the artist, CFA Berlin, Thomas
Dane Gallery and David Zwirner

Juggler, 2019

This juggler could be making a show of his talent to attract spectators on a marketplace. This scene is reminiscent of carnivals from northern France, a time when all kinds of reversals are possible, but it also call to mind Marc Chagall's tempera painting for Introduction to the Jewish Theatre (1920), which gathers on one stage a whole company of acrobats. As Seurat, Picasso or Chagall did before her, Schutz took an interest in the plastic challenges that come with depicting the circus. For this work, she was influenced by Willem De Kooning's sculptures, specifically Clam Digger and Hostess. How do you sculpt a juggler under the weight of matter? The balancing act that Schutz is trying to achieve may be the one of creation itself.

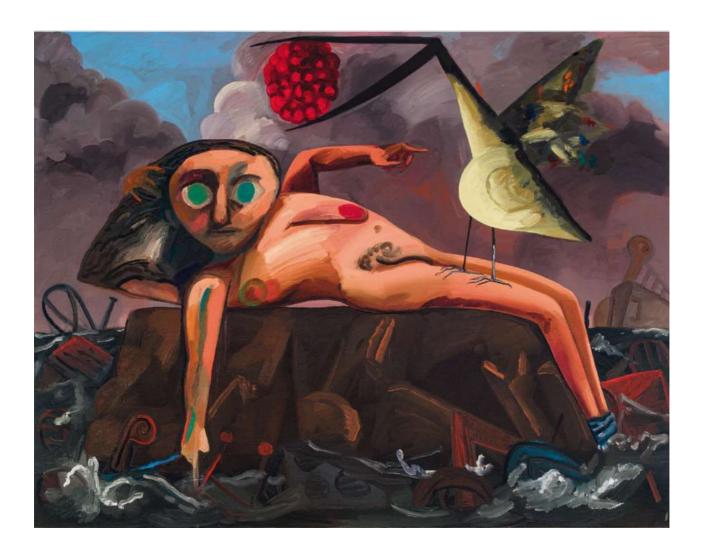

Dana Schutz
Juggler
2019
Bronze
109,2 x 101,6 x 61,3 cm
De Ying Foundation
Photo Ben Westoby
© 2023 Dana Schutz. Courtesy of the artist, CFA Berlin, Thomas
Dane Gallery and David Zwirner

The Visible World, 2018

In her earliest works, Dana Schutz has often depicted catastrophes by the seaside — idyllic landscapes with worlds crumbling in the foreground. Here, a naked woman is lying on a rock in the middle of the ocean. Around her, waves are carrying all sorts of detritus adding to the general mood of disaster. Has she been shipwrecked or is she a goddess pointing out rather flatly the gravity of the situation with one arm outstretched? As a female Prometheus, she sternly fixes her gaze on the viewer while receiving an offering of raspberries from a bird. She even possesses a third arm. In Schutz's own words, she has traffic-light green eyes. The title The Visible World denotes the reality of pictures, a container for the intangible, a condition that the subject of this painting seems to be forever bound to, while gesturing toward escape.

Dana Schutz
The Visible World
2018
Oil on canvas
274,3 x 355,6 cm
Private Collection
Photo Jason Mandella
© 2023 Dana Schutz. Courtesy of the artist, CFA Berlin,
Thomas Dane Gallery and David Zwirner

Beat Out the Sun, 2018

Like gathering clouds, a group of men march in step and in line into frame to go beat the living daylights out of the Sun. Rather than worship it, they seek to extinguish it, leaving only shadows and darkness in their wake. They are a curious army. One of the soldiers is wearing a striped jersey à la Picasso (1881-1973), while another, tears rolling down his cheek, sports traces of nails in his feet, like Jesus. This horde of men comes across an ancient warrior types. But once they arrive, they see that the rays of the Sun ressemble the wooden planks they are carrying in lieu of rifles. Then, they stop in their tracks, disappointed.

Dana Schutz Beat Out the Sun 2018 Oil on canvas 238,8 x 222,3 cm The Labora / Hartland & Mackie Collection Photo Jason Mandella © 2023 Dana Schutz. Courtesy of the artist, CFA Berlin, Thomas Dane Gallery and David Zwirner

Mountain Group, 2018

There are many people on this mountain and they all have various backgrounds: God, Buddha, painters and climate activists... They are trying to make their way to the top, shoving each other, pointing at a cloud, or making V signs with their hands, as if they knew the way to solve humanity's problems. But they are all leading in different directions and one character is even removing the ladder behind him. They have created a Tower of Babel where all the languages on Earth collide. Birds vomit blood as though delivering an omen about the state of the world. But whether it's the thought of overpopulation or the rising sea levels triggering the alarm, it's all happening under a sky that could almost come from a Rococo painting.

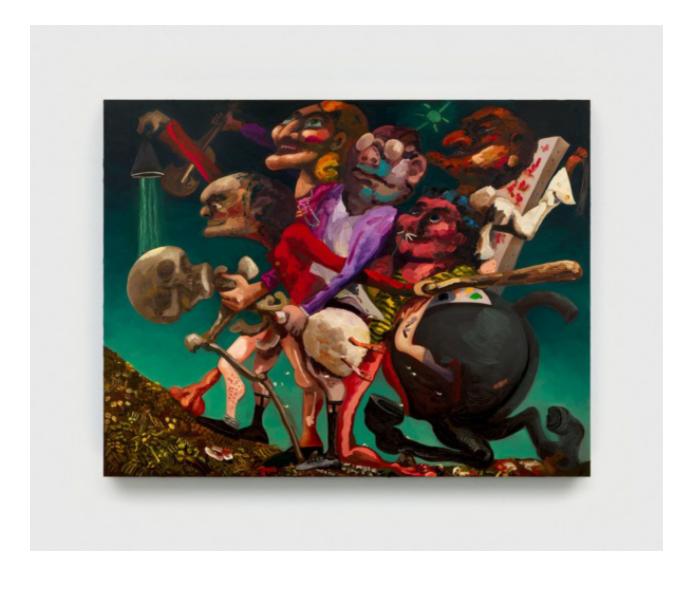

Dana Schutz Mountain Group Oil on canvas 304,8 x 396,2 cm Collection of Marguerite Steed Hoffman Photo Iason Mandella © 2023 Dana Schutz. Courtesy of the artist, CFA Berlin, Thomas Dane Gallery and David Zwirner

The Arts, 2021

The arts – in the form of music, theatre, literature and painting – move from right to left as though parading uphill on their crooked legs, but at the same time there is an air of catastrophe. The composition takes after paintings from the Renaissance onwards. However these figures do not have any shared goal. One of the characters gazes up in hope while swinging a violin, another clutches a skeleton like a modern Hamlet, a third one is sniffing a flower, while the others look straight ahead brandishing a club, whip or spotlight. The scene gives the impression of a pointless death ride - or a medieval danse macabre. Beneath a green, primitive sun the landscape is strangely subdued; it could be underwater. Parallels can be drawn to the colour palette of Surrealism, not least that of the artist Max Ernst (1891-1976).

Dana Schutz The Arts Oil on canvas 236,2 x 304,8 cm Private Collection, courtesy David Zwirner Photo Maris Hutchinson © 2023 Dana Schutz. Courtesy of the artist, CFA Berlin, Thomas Dane Gallery and David

Visitor information

MUSÉE D'ART MODERNE DE PARIS

Postal address

11, avenue du Président Wilson, 75116 Paris Tél. 01 53 67 40 00 www.mam.paris.fr

Public transport

- Metro : Alma-Marceau ou léna (ligne 9)
- Bus: 32/42/63/72/80/
- Vélib's bike station: 4 rue de Longchamp; 4 avenue Marceau; place de la reine Astrid; 45 avenue Marceau or 3 avenue
- Bike: Bicycle parking spaces are available in front of the museum entrance.
- RER C : Pont de l'Alma (ligne C)

Opening hours

- Tuesday-Sunday, 10am 6pm (last entry 5:15pm)
- Closed on Monday and on some public holidays
- Open late: Thursday until 9.30pm

Admission

Full rate: 12 € Reduced rate: 10 € Free for visitors under 18

Combined ticket with Nicolas de Staël exhibition full price: 17 € Combined ticket with Nicolas de Staël exhibition reduced rate : 15 €

The exhibition is accessible to people with motor disabilities and reduce mobility.

No-queue tickets: www.mam.paris.fr

Press Officer

Maud Ohana maud.ohana@paris.fr

Paris Musées

THE NETWORK OF MUSEUMS OF THE CITY OF PARIS

United since 2013 under the Paris Musées banner, the City of Paris museums and heritage sites are home to collections as remarkable for their diversity as for their quality. In a gesture of outreach visitor services have been upgraded, more attractive entrance fees introduced for temporary exhibitions, and special provision made for visitors unfamiliar with this kind of cultural

The permanent collections (which are free*), the temporary collections and the varied cultural activities drew 3 million visitors in 2018.

By consulting the Paris Musées website you can keep up to date on what's happening at the museums, get acquainted with the collections, and prepare your visit: parismusees. paris.fr

THE PARIS MUSÉES PASS

VISIT WHEN AND WHERE YOU LIKE!

The Paris Musées Pass means unlimited, no-queue access to all temporary exhibitions in the 14 City of Paris museums, together with special prices for museum activities, reductions in the bookshops, boutiques, cafés and restaurants, and advance information on museum events. More than 16,000 people are currently holders of the Paris Musées Pass.

All information: Museum reception or : www.parismusees.paris.fr

